Myrkle-Harder Company Presents The Fortune Hunter Matinee and Evening Today.

Go to church every Sunday, Pick "Go to church every Sunday, Pick out one of the rich ones to go to. Do just as the others in the congregation do. Stand up and sit down, look up hymns and sing. Be careful not to look as if you were trying to show off, but do it all modestly—as if you were used to it—are some of the rules Winchell Smith gives his hero, Nat-Duncan, in his search for a wife and a million dollars. "Nearly all the wealthy men in small towns are deacons and though they may not speak weathy men in small towns are dea-cons and though they may not speak to you outside it is their business to shake hands with you after the ser-mon and ask you to come again, and they will take notice of you from that time on, says the author of The For-time Hunter.

tune Hunter.

The long, successful run of The Fortune Hunter at the New Amsterdam theatre in New York city, is still fresh in the minds of theatregoers. Other plays to be presented by the excellent organization are The Third Degree, The Spendthrift, The Great Divide, The Girl in Watting, Quincy Adams Sawyer. Seats are now selling for the week's engagement, matinee at 2:30, 10c, 20c jevening at 8:15, 10c. 2.30, 10c, 20c ; evening at 8.15, 10c, c, 30c, 50c.

COLONIAL THEATRE.

Rider Haggard's Romance of Love and War, Jess, in Four Reels.

The management of the Colonial theatre has the honor of presenting today and tomorrow, Rider Haggard's great romance of love and war entitled Jess. This superb presentation is in four reeis, and is headed by the popular players, Constance Crawley and Arthur Mande. It is a story of an Englishman in South Africa who is rearing his two nieces, who are also orphans. Jess, the elder girl, promised the dying mother that she would care ever and eternally for Bess, her sister. Later they are both in love with the same English officer, much to the distress of the rejected lover, Mueller. The Boer war is shown in all its intensity with fully 1,000 soldiers in which the lover of the girls is captured, together with Jess. Plans laid by Mueller to kill the lover, fall, and then the uncle is captured and Bess is given the choice of seeing her uncle die or marry Mueller, Jess solves the difficulty by killing Mueller while he sleeps, thus releasing Bess and her uncle while she, Jess, dies of exhaustion from an attempt to reach her lover, with the information. Bess and John are married and return to England, but in a succeeding vision it is planly shown that Jess is not forgotten in their happiness. This splendid spectacle is accompanied by other high grade dramas, which complete the big bill.

PRACTICAL MODEL.

Ladies' House Dress With Long or Shorter Sleeve and With Ratsed or Normal Waistine.

Striped gray and white seerscaker, with facings of gray in a darker shade, was used for this model. Blue checked gingham, trimmed with white, would also be effective. The style is equally good for chambrey, percale, cashmere, flannel, flannellette, lawn or galatea. The sonts of the waist and ekirt are shaped in points to correspond. The skirt back has a group or dark tunks over its center, Long or short sleeves may be used. The pal.ern is cut in six slees: 24, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches, bust measure. It requires 54 yards of 44-inch material for a 35 inch size.

Auditorium Program Today Contains Many Excellent Features.

The three acts seen on today's bill are of the high quality which can only be seen in the vaudeville programs at the Auditorium, as all are high salaried artists, and it would be quite possible to put on six acts with-out spending any more than these ree cost. Today's show starts off with a big rocays show starts off with a big bang, as the opening number is the massive 101-Bison three reel war drama. The Mad Hermit. It is not necessary to dwell on the speciacular features of this film as everyone knows what the 101-Bison name means in pidrures of this kind Francis Food. anows what the 101-Elson name means in pictures of this kind. Francis Ford, who produced the film, was the original producer of big war dramas, he also plays the leading male character. Miss Grace Cunard, who wrote the scenario, also plays the feading female role. This picture alone is worth the price of admission male role. This picture alone is worth the price of admission.

The vaudeville will be started by Pitsor & Daye, in their bright comedy skit, The Wise Rube and the Actress, which is a very clever offering; they conclude their act with their latest dance conception. The Holland Tango which is something different in the dance line.

Next comes Detello, the fascinating soubrette. Not another word about this act, you will do all the talking necessary after you see it.

The third act is The Three Cyclonians, who are known as the whiriwinds of mirth on the whizing wheels. There are three men cyclists in this act, which is a comedy riot from start to finish. Their burlesque motorcycle is the funniest thing ever seen on the

COAL BUSINESS SOLD.

J. O. Peckham Buys Out C. H. Haskell and Will Continue Business.

O. Peckham of West Thames Feckham of West Thames street has bought, through the agency of E. A. Prentice, the coal plant and caulment of C. H. Haskell at 58 Thames street. This plant has been in existence more than forty years, having been owned and managed for a long period by the late Capt. Labam R. Jewett. It was purchased by Mr. Haskell in 1908.

The property has a dock frontage of nearly 200 feet, with the same frontage on Thames street. It comprises bins for 3,000 tons of coal, an office and storage building and a brick barn. Handling of the coal is done in modern fashion the coal being hoisted from boats alongside the dock, dropped into covered bins by means of long chutes and loaded by gravity over screens into wagons beneath, so that a shovel does not touch the coal from the time it leaves the boat until it is shoveled into baskets at the consumer's house.

The unusual financial ability which er's house.

The unusual financial ability which Mr. Peckham has shown in the past will insure his future success.

For the last four years Mr. Haskell has been secretary of the New England Coal Dealers' association, an organization of nearly 600 members, and will continue in that office.

For the last six months he has also been connected with the Magnesia Talc. Co. of Burlington, Vt., and it is because his duties have become too many and varied that he has disposed of his coal business, but he will continue to reside in this city.

MY LOST SHIP.

Mine was a little, little ship, but she was brave and fair.

And ghostly white her sails shone out upon the sail sea air.

She strained upon her cable like a hound upon a chain.

As though she scorned the land locked bay and longed to meet the main.

She was laden with no burden or pre-cious gems or gold.

No merchandise for foreign ports was hidden in her hold.

She bore no wondrous paintings, no treasured works of art.

But oh, she bore the hopes and dreams of one young human heart!

Through long, long years I waited, watching through every day. To see her coming slowly up through the sheltered bay; I knew her sails were weather worn, her sides were gray with brine, But all she held within her hold was surely only mine.

She came not—Oh, she came not! And now at last I know
She lies upon the deep sea bed, full many fathoms low;
She spoke no ship, she reached no port, but when the tempest woke
She slowly sank, while over her che curling spindrift broke.

No other ship have I to send, no hopes for precious freight;
When white salled fleets come gayly in no more I watch and walt;
Never will previous cargo come from ports afar for me
I know not even where she lies, my ship I sent to sea!

Ninette M. Lowater, in the New York Sun.
